

JUNIOR OFFICER ADVISORY GROUP

2015-2017 Voting Membership Biographies

Danielle Buttke, DVM, PhD, MPH, DACVPM
Voting Membership 2015-2017
Co-Chair: Public Health and Community Service
Veterinary Category Liaison

LCDR Danielle Buttke, veterinary category, is the One Health Coordinator for the National Park Service where she serves as one of two epidemiologists responding to disease outbreaks and integrating wildlife, human, and ecosystem health protection and promotion. Prior to joining the USPHS and National Park Service in 2012, she served as an Epidemic Intelligence Service Officer at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's National Center for Environmental Health as a civilian federal employee. She earned her Doctorate of Veterinary Medicine and PhD in Comparative Biomedical Sciences at Cornell University and a Masters in Public Health from Johns Hopkins University. She graduated summa cum laude with honors with a Bachelors of Science in Ecology and Political Science from the University of South Dakota. She is also board certified in Preventative Veterinary Medicine and holds a certification in public health.